

Help us do a world of good...

Since our founding in 1898, some profound changes have occurred at Des Moines University, College of Osteopathic Medicine, not the least of which is the fact we have graduated more than 10,000 osteopathic physicians in all specialties world-wide!

As medicine has never been more full of promise than it is today, it's critical our faculty and students have access to talented academic administrators and leaders. Thus, Des Moines University is inviting qualified and interested candidates to apply for two dynamic and collaborative opportunities --Assistant Dean of Clinical Affairs and Associate Dean Academic Affairs!

- Associate Dean of Academic Affairs will primarily be responsible for providing collaborative and consultative academic leadership and management of the didactic phase of an innovative osteopathic medical education program and the promotion of basic sciences faculty development.
Requirements include, but are not limited to: D.O., M.D. or PhD required. Minimum 8 years of related experience with 4 of those years in medical education; expertise in curricular design and assessment; demonstrated commitment to principles of diversity and inclusivity; excellent communications skills.
- Assistant Dean of Clinical Affairs will be primarily responsible for advancing excellence in education by identifying and developing clinical education training sites; working with students on career planning and developing clinical remediation plans.
Requirements include, but are not limited to: D.O., M.D. or PhD in Education plus 4 years of successful teaching at a medical school or medical institution; demonstrated commitment to diversity and inclusivity; demonstrated experience/ability to work collaboratively and effectively with administrators, faculty and students; excellent communications skills.
